My dear Mother

It has been awfully cold here snow and a little ice but it is nice and warm today after yesterday rain. Mrs Lancaster took me up ~~to~~ the Grammar School yesterday for Dr Turpin to examine me I went into his study, oh that little room of his was like an oven I took my things off and settled down to the first sum, by the time I'd finished it the heat began to make me feel a bit queer so when Dr Turps came to correct it I was violently sick on my knickerbockers (the stink) and dizzy in my head Dr Turps said "I think you had better come out a minute" but bless you I couldn't walk I went bumping into desks knocking down books and at last came a crapper against the door so Dr Turps had to haul me along to the bath room where Mrs J. had to wipe me. Mr Lan: told me I was very clever and he didn't know I had so much in me I agree with him. Mr Lancaster the Great Magul went on <sup>Wednesday</sup> ~~Friday~~ I gave him a drawing like this one of my best so one day he brought a beautiful steamer I think she'll go well she's so well made. yesterday afternoon I had Mammy (Maimmy) Elworth to tea and we made taffy splendid stuff best I've ever tasted so we ate it all up a dish full I got no more to say so goodbye with tons of love a kisses from you loving son

Brian
